

To better visualize the newsletter, we recommend enabling the option to download images and include this address in your safe senders list.

Mesoamerica Program Newsletter

May 2017

Youth in Mesoamerica produce radio messages about safe migration

Why is making radio still important in our region? This is one of the questions with which the Mesoamerica Program personnel initiate the communication workshops they have been imparting in the region since this past April. Read More

Highlights

Podcasts on Safe Migration. Listen here

E-Learning Platform

New Virtual Course

UN Agencies refine their strategies for the assistance of migrant children in Mexico

In 2016 more than 40 thousand boys, girls and adolescents were identified in Mexico, as they attempted to cross the country in irregular conditions. A good part of them, more than 20 thousand, migrated alone, with no adult company. Read More

Soon

Specialized Course on Migrant Children in Mesoamerica

In a simultaneous fashion, the countries in Mesoamerica are replicating the specialized course on migrant children; aggregating in this way, officers who are continuously better prepared to face the challenges presented with offering an adequate attention to the thousands of girls, boys and adolescents that migrate in the region.

Read More

Regional Workshop on Migration and LGBTI Populations
Guatemala City, June 13-15, 2017

“Many times just saying that your child is alive is a great joy for many families”: testimony from the Honduras border

Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays are return days in Honduras. On the border with Guatemala, several buses throughout the day transport migrants returning to their country after a dangerous journey that has generally taken them to Mexico. They are mostly women and children, many of them unaccompanied migrants.

Read More

Information Service of the IOM Mesoamerica Program. With the support of the International Migration Office of the Bureau of Population, Refugees, and Migration

